

Tomazo, 21 November 2015

Name: Viengeméne Ulisse

To: President and Members of the Security Council of the United Nations

RE: Demand Justice and Reparations

President,

It is with great sadness that I write you this letter to remind you that human rights are something that all people must respect no matter how powerful you are.

My name is Viengeméne Ulisse. I live near Thomasseau commune. On May 3, 2011 I suddenly fell ill. I had diarrhea and vomiting; I couldn't stand. They hurriedly brought me to the hospital. They laid me down on a wooden bed with a hole for me to use the toilet. They gave me lots of fluids. Eight days later, they sent me home. Ever since that day, I haven't felt the same. [The disease] left a fever in my body and a headache and I am still recuperating. Meanwhile, I have family to take care of so I can't take care of myself. I learned that it was MINUSTAH that brought this disease to my country. In this sense, I ask the president of the United Nations and all of its allies to compensate us and bring justice and reparations.

I hope that the United Nations Security Council grants the upmost importance to my demands as a victim.

Best regards,
Viengeméne Ulisse

CC:

Ban Ki-Moon: Secretary General of the United Nations
Evans Paul: Prime Minister of the Republic of Haiti